

National Certification SQNPI 2023

Toil, passion, and years of experience paired with the latest expertise – for generations, our farmers’ exceptional achievement has been a testament to their dedicated effort. And no matter what they do, their work has always been characterized by a deep respect for and gratefulness to nature.

Obtaining a certification awarded by an independent supervisory body helps to prove just that. What started as a pilot project back in 2022 involving approximately 100 agricultural businesses at that time has now been extended to a total of approximately 900 agricultural businesses that signed up for non-mandatory certification this year.

Suggestions, questions, and complaints

The certification process offers all citizens the opportunity to report any misconduct that they witnessed and that violates the stipulations currently in force. Any such reports are required to include information on the sender of the report, the operator of the business, and the suspected nonconformity.
